

Satellite radio is a terrific technology that needs to be expanded, not restricted.

On a recent driving trip from Atlanta to Orlando I was able to tune to the Orlando weather at the beginning of the trip then listen to Orlando traffic and plan my route during the drive. I was able to alter my planned route to avoid a traffic tie-up (and not add one more vehicle to the problem). The immediacy of XM's traffic is more valuable to me than waiting for a report every 15 minutes (during rush hour) on FM.

I am anxiously awaiting XM's traffic and weather for Atlanta.
